EXTRA POLICE GUARD CITY DURING FAIR WEEK

Ten Officers and Patrol Driver Sworn In to Aid Regular Force.

With ten extra men sworn in for police duty during the next ten days and the appointment of a driver for the patrol wagon to assist during the coming week, Chief of Police Moore will this morning take the first step toward insuring good order and protection for life and limb in this city during the days of the territorial fair. With this force of special officers, many of whom have had experience in police duty in Phoenix and other cities, combined with his regular officers, he will be able to pretty thoroughly cover the congested districts and have a man or two available for emergencies.

In the selection of his extra men, the chief exercised great care in an effort to secure the best available material. In this he was somewhat fortunate in locating at least five men who have done police duty, thereby fitting them for the handling of the trying situations, which are bound to arise whenever there is an unusually large crowd in any city.

At Central avenue and Washington street, J. Carmody, a former Pittsburg, Pa., police officer, will be stationed. E. G. Crow will be placed at First and Washington streets, T. A. Greenlee will be found at Central avenue and Adams street, while officers yet to be selected will be on duty at First avenue and Washington street and Adams street and First avenue.

Charles Kearley will guard Central avenue at McDowell road and see to it that the automobiles observe the rule of the road and do not fracture city speed ordinances. William Dowell will be found on Grand avenue a little beyond Five Points, where the street car switch is located. C. J. Best, A. W. Lane, a former Prescott officer, and John Long, formerly connected with the Denver police force, will probably be found in plain clothes circulating among the Washington street crowds.

It is expected that there will be considerable use for the patrol wagon, and as the regular officers will have their hands full most of the time, Stanley Price of this city has been appointed driver during the week. He is a careful driver and knows the city thoroughly and it is believed that he will make as efficient a patrolman as could be found.

It will be the aim of the police not to make a record number of arrests, but to preserve order and to protect life and property. There will be more or less leniency in regard to ordinary drunks, efforts being made to induce them to go to their homes or at least to keep off the streets. Arrests in these cases will not be made unless it seems to be for the best interests of the individual or the general public.

Several officers will be mounted and prepared to make quick response to calls coming from a considerable distance from the police station. Motorcycle Policeman Jerry Thompson will not be confined to any one particular section, but will free lance to a large extent and is liable to be found in almost any portion of the city at the most unexpected time.

On the whole, it is believed that everything possible to look after the interests of the community within the jurisdiction of his department has been done by Chief Moore, and that there is little doubt but that he and his men will acquit themselves with credit.

DAN PATCH WILL HOLD RECEPTION TOMORROW

Unique Feature of the Visit to Arizona of "The King of the Turf."

A unique social function is announced for Tuesday afternoon at the Arizona territorial fair grounds. The affair has been planned by the fair officials and is in honor of the most distinguished equine guest that ever visited Phoenix, Dan Patch, champion of harness horses.

While no cards have been issued, the Dan Patch reception will be select, and only those who know and admire good horses are invited. The guest of honor will receive all visitors and will be assisted in the entertainment by "Patch," the silver Yorkshire terrior that is the champion's constant companion and mascot, and Charles Plummer, the man who has cared for the wants of Dan Patch during the past eight years. The hours will be from twelve to two and the place will be the Dan Patch special apartments now being arranged on the fair ground.

While Dan Patch has always been popular with horsemen for his unequalled speed, he has been attaining almost equal fame and popularity with women and children all over the United States for his beauty, gentleness, intelligence and winning manners. As a colt he had young women as playmates and it is a part of the folk lore of his Indiana birthplace that he once saved a little girl's life by the display of judgment and rare "horse sense." He has always shown an unusual fondness for members of the fair sex and children, hundreds of thousands of whom have visited him during his long racing and exhibition career.

Through the strenuous days of his record breaking efforts, Dan had little time to devote to admiring visitors. Now that he is traveling as an exhibition horse and as the head of the Savage stable of record breaking pacers, the champion of them all has plenty of time to indulge his social inclinations and his owner, M. W. Savage, has given orders that he be allowed this pleasure and that everyone be given the opportunity of getting acquainted with the King of the Turf. It is believed that he is looking forward with pleasant anticipation to Tuesday's function.

NEW PROPRIETORS OF THE FAIR STORE

Herzberg Bros. Will Run High Class Furnishing Goods Establishment

Herzberg Bros., the new proprietors of the Fair store, next to the New York store on East Washington street, are making extensive improvements in their place of business and within a short time will install a stock that is almost entirely new throughout.

The former owner of the Fair, Miss A. Voskuhl, opened the store a number of years ago. She always carried millinery, notions and toys and under her direction the establishment always did a large business. The new proprietors expect to improve the grade of goods, changing the lines somewhat. New lines will be added and several, such as toys, discontinued.

When their plans are carried out the stock will consist of high class ladies' and gents' furnishing goods, millinery and notions. While they will carry a wide range of grades, it is their aim to cater to the most exclusive trade. One of the brothers, Adolph, has been with the New York store seven years. Nat Herzberg came here recently from San Diego, where he was for several years with the Leader store. He has also had two years experience as a traveling salesman of goods such as he will carry in his store.
